

PROTECT EDUCATION FOR ALL STUDENTS

A Message for Every American

What's Happening?

A proposal to eliminate the U.S. Department of Education is being considered. This change could take away critical support that students and families across the country rely on—especially in small towns, rural communities, and for children with disabilities.

What's at Risk?

🏫 Support for Rural & Disabled Students – Programs like Title I and IDEA help ensure students in underfunded areas and those with special needs get the resources they deserve.

🏫 College Financial Aid – Federal grants and loans like Pell Grants make college and job training possible for millions of families.

🏫 Student Protections – The Department enforces civil rights laws that help prevent discrimination based on race, disability, and gender. Without this, students may be left without a clear path to justice.

Why It Matters

This isn't about politics—it's about making sure every student has a fair shot at success, no matter where they live or what challenges they face.
